RUBBER LETTERS

As the new Mr. Vulcan Rubber '97, I hope to create an increased awareness of latex/rubber in our community. I plan on doing this by not only wearing latex/rubber but by encouraging others to do so proudly. As I travel across the country promoting the world of rubber, I also hope to inspire you to adopt an aids organization that directly enhances the lives of our brothers and sisters with aids. My adopted organization is Aids Care Chicago, an agency that houses those in need of a comfortable living space.

If your organization or hometown bar is sponsoring a rubber event, please feel free to contact me. With enough notice and preparation, I will make every effort to attend your event.

I would like to take this opportunity to thank Rich Brooks of Men of Rubber and Boston Leather Knights for affording me the pleasure of entering this contest. Without these organizations and the assistance of my hometown bar, CELL BLOCK, a contest would not have been possible. To Ryan Johnson, my mentor/inspiration/"Rubber God", I thank you for introducing me to the world of rubber.

I look forward to meeting all of you in the very near future and am pleased to be a member of your Men of Rubber club.

(Ed: Rich Villagracia can also be reached through Men of Rubber via s-mail.)

Oh great & mighty RubberRuler:

Thank you from the bottom of my bodybag for a real blowout of a weekend at the recent MVR97 contest at the CELL BLOCK!

Ms. Warren, the next "Bette Midler", was thoroughly delightful as the emcee and her expressions of devotion to rubber were so humorously creative.

Add to that all of the hot, studly men dripping in rubber, latex, and leather, and it is easy to see why the whole thing was so satisfying.

The play sessions in the dungeon brought forth sexy, good fun from all participants and fed our fantasy imagination for a long time to come. You sure know how to set the mood for a hot party! Rubber wrapped male physiques are such a feast for the senses and I do enjoy the way rubber turns up the passion. Everything you did made it so easy to be naughty with others! And it makes me look forward to the next opportunity. I bottomed for a novice Topman and the scene inspired me to go right out and buy the rubber toy he used to bring me to ectasy.

You are a true friend, RubberRuler. Please keep piping out the tune on your vulcanized flute which will bring more and more rubbermen to these terrific events.

---- John Scardina

Men of Rubber:

I would greatly appreciate more information /catalog & price list of your products and newsletters. Do you have a branch in RSA? Thanking you in anticipation.

(Ed: Your inquiry was very much appreciated. Your packet is going out shortly along with a MR application. Hope you decide to join our worldwide organization!)

Rich:

Enjoyed the whimsical MR Christmas card. Kudos to Chris M. for a very creative illustration. Will we see more of his work?

---Jason
Philadelphia, PA

(Ed: Chris has contributed another winner for this issue---3 rubbermen inflating a giant, phallic #1 for the MR birthday celebration. See p. 7.)

Rich:

I missed the MVR97 contest but greatly appreciated the wonderful coverage of the event in the last RubberPipeline. I especially liked the hot photo on page 5. Looks like the judges picked a real winner! Can't wait to see what you will be doing with the additional 16 pages in the next MR newsletter. Keep up the good work.

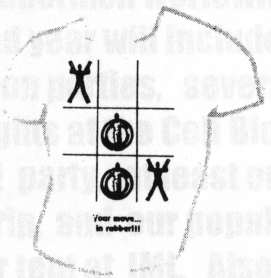
--- California rubberman

Editor:

I always enjoy the back cover treatment of the RubberPipeline. Your rubberized version of Tic-tac-toe was terrific! Will we see a Milton-Bradley board game soon?

--- Harvey Cook
Baltimore, MD

(Ed: No game board versions planned at this time. Any interest out there in T-shirts witht the tic-tac-toe design?)



RUBBER COMMENTARY

One year ago, Men of Rubber was simply an idea for a midwest rubber club that would offer an unique newsletter and playful dungeon parties in Chicago.

Today, with 130 members worldwide, Men of Rubber has exceeded all expectations! With this issue the RubberPipeline expands to 32 pages. A full slate of 1997 activities are planned and a MR website is in the design stage. Its going to be an exciting second year.

I am pleased to announce that Leman Yuen will be assisting me in the planning of the MR parties, our IML exhibit, and the MR Roster. Leman will also be developing some new rubber/latex products that we will be introducing at our IML rubber tent.

With the expansion of the MR newsletter, I am now solicitng rubber short stories for future issues. The pay is zip...but think of the exposure, fame, and bold by-line credit! All submitted stories will be reviewed by a panel of three members who will make a determination as to: appropriateness, technical quality, and sizzle. So, get your creative rubber juices flowing...and submit!

You will notice a lot more photographs in this issue. We need at least 20 hot photos for the next eddition. Deadline: April 10th. See p. 11 for details. Here's your perfect opportunity to share your hot, rubberized photo with our readers around the world.

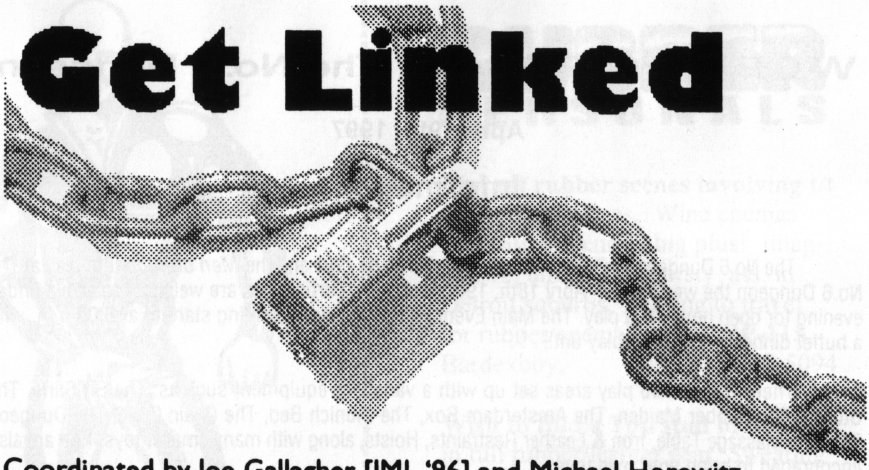
Get Linked



Coordinated by Joe Gallagher [IML '96] and Michael Horowitz, Get-Linked will create a real chain made from individual links each contributed by members of the Leather/SM Community.

Links are now coming in regularly and from as far away as Christchurch, New Zealand. The size of the chain will create a symbolic and very powerful display of how large and diverse our community is. The entire chain will be displayed at International Mr. Leather 1997 after which it will be turned over to the Leather Archive and Museum.

MR
MEN OF RUBBER

Men of Rubber salute Joe Gallagher and Michael Horowitz (MR member) for their efforts in initiating this creative project!

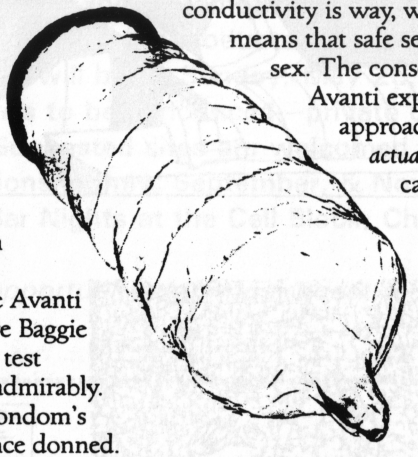
And we plan to participate as a club by submitted 130+ rubber links next month. Marc Peurye and Leman Yuen are heading up the committee. If you would like to assist, call: Mark 773/878-7517
Leman 815/568-1448

Each link will be inscribed with a members first name and initial of last name. While 99% of the other thousands of links will be made up of metal chain, the MR committee thought it would be fitting and appropriate for our links to be rubber. Our goal is to have 150 links stretching some 12-1/2 ft.

The Rubberless Rubber

THE FDA IS ABOUT TO make it official: The polyurethane condom that has been available west of the Rockies for more than a year now ("for use by individuals with latex sensitivities") will soon be safe enough even for non-Californians. Thinner than latex and impervious to oil-based lubricants, the new Avanti appears to be a better mousetrap.

It took six years of R&D to reengineer Saran Wrap into contraceptive technology. Unfurled, the Avanti is clear and crinkly—more Baggie than rubber. In Esquire's test bedrooms, it performed admirably. Much was made of the condom's "shrink-wrapped" feel once donned. The only complaint came from one disoriented fellow who said that the Avanti was "too thin." A risk-averse kind of guy, he repeatedly felt the need to verify that, yes, his seat belt was securely fastened.



The rest discovered that polyurethane's virtually frictionless surface makes for an exceptionally smooth ride, and since this condom is only forty microns thick, heat conductivity is way, way up, which means that safe sex is again hot sex. The consensus is that the Avanti experience approaches that of actual sex. Two caveats: Because polyurethane film, though twice as strong as latex, is not as elastic, the Avanti is tailored a skosh wider than most ordinary condoms, which could pose a problem for the Slim Jims of the world. And it's $2 a pop. As if you didn't know by now, pleasure has its price.

Rubber Rebel
THE AMERICAN FETISH MAGAZINE FOR MEN

The demise of Rubber Rebel magazine last December had a double impact on Men of Rubber.

MR member and editor of the publication, Tim Brough was tossed out from his job and left stranded in Austin, Texas. We wish him well as he pursues jobs worthy of his creative writing talents. We are actively soliciting referrals for Tim. Secondly, the issue with all the photos from the Mr. Vulcan Rubber '97 contest is frozen in production and may never see the light of day. Let's hope that a guardian angel of rubber can take over the magazine and make it a go.

On the lighter side...

"No, I'm not into rubber particularly---the bar's on fire!"
